

Helping Other Parents:

Please do not give out my phone number to a struggling parent if you can help it.

Why you ask?

Stress might stop them from calling me because they could be stuck in their head.

Then they carry on in their dysfunctional experience with their teen. Some times the worst outcomes happen when they do not receive functional help.

I much prefer you offer to introduce me to them by a common text message or email.

Then you call me and tell me about them.

It would be great to hear your voice again.

Together, you and I can get those parents some free information and a new point of view.

Click Here

To email me right now and tell me about this parent

Text here

403-391-4184

For a quick response